BE SYD WINS INNOVATION GONG

BUSINESS Events Sydney has been recognised as an ABA100 Winner for Business Innovation in The Australian Business Awards 2019, in the organisation's 50th anniversary year.

Championing the long-tail economic and social legacies of global meetings for a host destination, BESydney developed a methodology that challenged conventions, and has set the benchmark for reporting, which is now being used by the meetings industry globally.

New South Wales Minister for Jobs, Investment, Tourism and Western Sydney Stuart Ayres said, "BESydney strategically targets conferences that are aligned with Sydney and Australia's unique industry and academic strengths, so when those events come here the impacts of the conference are more far-reaching and long-standing – both for our local Australian communities as well as the international host organisation and their membership."

BESydney Chair Bruce Baird, said, "Business innovation has been the cornerstone of the organisation's success over the decades.

"It has enabled them to stay ahead of the curve, delivering for their clients and the Gov."

Milestone targets award for SailGP event

MILESTONE has been recognised for its outstanding work in events as National Marketing Partner for SailGP, announced as a finalist in the 2019 Australian Event Awards.

The organisation was yesterday announced as a national finalist for Best Achievement in Marketing, Communication or Sponsorship.

Entries are judged on all aspects of the achievement including innovation, best practice and sustainability, as well as the achievement's contribution to events and the difficulties encountered in executing it.

Milestone was responsible for delivering a fully integrated strategy and implementation, including creative, media planning and buying, digital marketing campaigns as well as alliance marketing and metro and residential campaigns.

NOVACANCY SELLOUT

NOVACANCY, Australia's biggest exhibition and conference event for the accommodation sector surpassed expectations, selling out at the International Convention Centre (ICC) Sydney last month.

The two-day event saw more than 5,000 attendees come through the doors, a 48% increase on NoVacancy 2018, with a 46% increase in exhibitors.

NoVacancy Event Director, Brad Langton, said 70% of exhibitors booked in for the 2020 edition, which will take place in May.

"To see this kind of growth in only its second year is a reflection of industry strength and reaffirms the need for an event that brings decision makers, thought leaders and suppliers together.

"This growth has far exceeded our expectations," he said.

"From the moment the doors opened on Wed (24 Jul morning the expo floor was buzzing with energy as visitors discovered products, had deep conversations and made new connections – this carried right through to Thu afternoon when the expo closed.

"The huge success of NoVacancy 2019 is a testament to the passion and the commitment to growth that this thriving industry and the professionals in it have, we're honoured to be a part of it."

WITH Australia's music festival season set to get underway in the coming months, and the question of pill testing back in the news, one Canadian celebration of music and arts took an unusual stance.

Instead of issuing a decree warning festival-goers to abstain from marijuana the organisers of last weekend's Osheaga event merely insisted attendees intending to experience the music on a different level, brought the herb in a sealed package.

Organisers explained the rule was to ensure only legal products were smoked.

CONVENTIONS and Incentives New Zealand's (CINZ) program for its annual conference in Queenstown from 29-31 Oct, aims to "inspire new thinking".

The three-day event will feature a host of speakers, panel and workshops tackling issues including, resilience and leadership, and will look at international trends.

Tourism New Zealand is supporting the event, hosting international speaker, Greg Brogue, Chief Experience Architect Maritz Global Events.

MCEC's sorbet scoops success

MELBOURNE Convention and Exhibition Centre's pastry chefs have once again scooped a smorgasbord of medals at the Australian Food Awards.

The MCEC team collected nine awards for their sorbets and ice creams, including four gold, four silver and a bronze.

The venue's coconut, passionfruit and vanilla sorbet was named "Best in Class (Sorbet) in Victoria" and will be considered for the Champions Trophy in the frozen dessert category when the national titles are announced in Sep.
