Business Events News today has two pages of news plus a front cover wrap from Sustainability Summit.

Sus Summit

THE Business Publishing Group has announced the inaugural Australian travel industry Sustainability Summit in Sydney.

The one-day event will see industry suppliers, operators, agency groups and other stakeholders take part to share best practices, learn from each other and examine key issues such as over tourism, single-use plastics, non-exploitative product development, sustainable cruising and aviation practices and how the industry can continue to make a difference.

THE annual "Ice Out" contest has officially launched, with Vermont officials inviting the public to guess how long the ice will last on Lake Memphremagog.

For the comp, the Newport Parks and Recreation put out a "large drawing of a bottle of vanilla extract (pictured) on a platform attached to a time clock" the local media reported.

It will record when the facade, called "Vanilla Ice," drops into the water.

DARWIN WELCOMES RECORD

RECENT events hosted in Darwin have seen "record numbers of attendance", with several conferences hosted at the Darwin Convention Centre (pictured) in 2018 achieving "their highest delegate numbers".

Some of the largest conferences included the Property Council of Australia, which held its annual conference in Darwin from 12 to 14 Sep 2018.

The two-day event attracted 760 delegates, breaking "the 2017 attendance record".

Delegates came from all over Australia, and some 20% brought their partners.

Additionally, the annual Rural Medicine Australia (RMA) Conference held in Darwin from 24 to 27 Oct 2018, welcomed well over its initial goal of 450 delegates.

"Our final count was 775 attendees," said Michelle Cuzens, the Event Co-ordinator.

"It was a big number in Darwin—one of our biggest."

Cuzens also said the common misconceptions about distance and cost for a Darwin business event were a non-issue.

"Darwin was one of those places we weren't sure if everyone was going to make the trip," she said.

"But many of our delegates told us they'd never been to Darwin, and in our post-event survey, it was a massive stand out and that Darwin is a 'destination city,'" Cuzens said.

In addition to organisations reaching record numbers, conference organisers are finding Darwin provides

"the perfect destination for delegates to connect and knowledge share".

The 46th biennial Ports Australia Conference held at also the Darwin Convention Centre, also achieved high attendance numbers.

Ports Australia Communication Director Mike Fairburn said Darwin's unique atmosphere and welcoming personality was one of the highlights & allowed the delegates to network.

"The setting actually encouraged the sector to unify more—that would be one of the legacies from the Darwin event."

AIME embraces sustainability

ASIA Pacific Incentives and Meetings Event (AIME) has announced a series of partnerships with key sustainable companies for its 2019 event held at Melbourne Convention & Exhibition Centre (MCEC).

The partnerships include Decorative Events & Exhibitions, creators of the new innovative exhibitor stand (pictured); and Harry the Hirer, the infrastructure builder of the three-day event.

"We replaced over 600 light fittings to energy-efficient alternatives and have eliminated the use of all plastic water bottles in catering," said MCEC COO Leighton Wood.

"These initiatives demonstrate that we are going far beyond a "tick box" approach by implementing unique and innovative measures, which benefit Melbourne, the local community, and more directly, AIME's environmental impact."

POWERING GROWTH

THE inaugural The Business of Events is set to explore the changing role of the events industry and the impact it's having on the economy from 07-08 Feb at the Sheraton Grand Sydney.

The event's theme "Powering Growth" will provide event professionals with insights on Australia's position within the global marketplace, strategies, international expectations, global trends, and business solutions to deliver ROI.

"The biggest changes to the industry will be the rise of risk, virtual experiences, brand strategy, customer satisfaction and social media," said Peter Jones Special Events Managing Director Peter Jones, who will be presenting a session on "Creating Memorable Experiences and Unexpected Moments".

International keynote, Laura

Schwartz (pictured) former White House Director of Events will MC and headline the two-day program.

Other speakers include Penny Lion, Executive General Manager of Events, Tourism Australia; Terese Casu, CEO, Sydney Gay and Lesbian Mardi Gras; and Natalie Xenita, Executive Director, IMG Fashion Asia-Pacific.
